Work For Blind Described at Club

Examples of Braille and Moon Systems Exhibited and Explained.

TALK ON ART FOLLOWS

Mrs. James Taylor, of Pittsburgh, addressed the members of the Woman's Community Club of Narberth at the meeting in Elm Hall on Tuesday afternoon. Her subject was the work for the Blind. Charts and books of the embossed lettering for blind readers were exhibited and she gave an enlightening explanation and history of the two methods, Moon and Braille.

The Moon Method is the earlier and simpler type and was devised by Dr. Moon, who was blind. The newer and more complex method was devised by Louis Braille, a Frenchman, who became blind at the age of twelve. By this method it has become possible for blind people to read music. This method has been taken up by the Red Cross and is now being taught to those who can see so that they may help the blind. Mrs. Taylor closed her talk with a plea for every member to become a patron of blind skill.

The second speaker of the day was Miss Constance Cochrane, of Philadelphia, whose topic was "The Enjoyment of Art." She illustrated this

'Arms and the Man' Next Repertory Theatre Offering

The Main Line Repertory Theatre announces its fourth play of the season, "Arms and the Man," by George Bernard Shaw. The production will take place as usual at the Woman's Club of Bala-Cynwyd, Bala Avenue and Levering Mill Road, Cynwyd, on Thursday evening, February 20.

The theme of the play, made famous by The Chocolate Soldier opera, has to do with the superstition that the donning of a uniform changes the nature of the wearer. Richard Murton, of Bryn Mawr, will play the part of Bluntschli, the chocolate soldier. The part of Raina, with whom he falls in love and whose illusions about warfare he shatters, will be played by Marian B. Sponsler, president of the organization.

Erratum

The Home Bake to be held by the Women's Association of the Baptist Church will be held tomorrow, January 25, at 235 Haverford Avenue, and not on January 5 as last week's issue erroneously reported. 'Twould have been an impossibility, anyhow, thus to turn back the wheels of time, but the real date remained a conjecture, through the typesetter's error.

Borough to Hire Full-Time Clerk

Seek to Relieve Superintendent of Public Works of Inside Duties.

GIVE REQUIREMENTS

Some time ago the Borough authorities experienced an increasing number of complaints from citizens who had been unable to get the Borough office on the telephone or, when going there for permits or to transact other business, to find anyone in the offices. In order to overcome that difficulty, arrangements were put into effect whereby George B. Suplee, Superintendent of Public Works, was assigned definite office hours, morning and afternoon every day in the week.

That system has now been in effect for two years and, while it has satisfactorily accomplished the objects which caused it to be adopted, it has been found that Mr. Suplee has frequently been unable to give the supervisory personal attention to much of the outside work which occasionally has seemed to suffer thereby. In effect, it is now recognized that it is too expensive and undesirable to compel the Borough Superintendent to remain in an office, awaiting possible demands there, while outside work, for which he is officially responsible, is proceeding without his personal supervision.

"Immigration, Our American Problem," will be discussed by Mrs. Cornell at the next meeting of the Lower Merion-Narberth Council of Republican Women. An invitation is extended all interested in immigration, in addition to members of the Council, to attend the meeting, which will be held 3:30 P. M. Tuesday, February 4, in the Township Building at Ardmore.

Year's Building in Borough Amounts to $435,077; Big Increase, Annual Report Shows

Building operations in Narberth during 1929 though fewer in number showed a pronounced increase in value over 1928. The operations for which permits were issued during the year amounted to $435,077, according to the annual report of Superintendent of Public Works George B. Suplee, as presented in the report of the Building Committee at Council

Considered by months, the greatest building activity was manifested during April, May and June, with the peak reached in June. The monthly allotment of building permits is as follows: January, 34; February, 34; March, 48; April, 74; May, 72; June, 84; July, 45,

Property Owners Oppose Projected Sanitarium

Opposition of Wynnewood property owners to a proposed sanitarium for mental and nervous diseases in the section was maintained at a high level at a meeting on Tuesday night at the Montgomery School. Over twenty-five residents were present.

The group seeking to erect the sanitarium at Hagsyford and Old Gulph Roads, Wynnewood, is known as Wynnewood Lodge, Inc. Since this is a residential district, exception to the zoning ordinance of the Township must be granted by the Board of Adjustment. A public hearing on the case was held Thursday night at the Township Building, Ardmore, just as this paper was going to press. All of the property owners who feel that such a sanitarium in their neighborhood would not help property values and would be objectionable in many others ways were planning to attend the hearing and make sure that the Board of Adjustment understood how they felt in the matter.

The property on which it is proposed to erect the sanitarium is adjacent to the Montgomery School, and adjoins a tract owned by the Lower Merion School Board.

Child Guidance Topic

A most interesting meeting was held in the Narberth Public School on Monday evening when Mrs. Jennie A. Griffith addressed the members of the Mothers' Council. Mrs. Griffith stressed the importance of group study concerning problems of the child both at school and at home.

The parents' responsibility was likened to that of the nurseryman starting a great forest. Mrs. Griffith showed how very carefully the little fir tree was nursed and guarded to be sure no harm could come to it and pointed to the parents' great responsibility in caring for and guiding the young lives entrusted to their care.

Author of "White House Gang" Tells of Boyhood

A moderately good audience heard Earle Looker, author of "The White House Gang," describe his boyhood experiences and associations with Theodore Roosevelt at an open meeting of the Harold Speakman Post, American Legion, of Narberth, on Monday night.

Roosevelt's profound influence on boys and his readiness to play with them and to understand their point of view was cited by the speaker in several amusing anecdotes.

Mr. Looker also described Mrs. Roosevelt's participation in the community affairs at Sagamore Hill, and her cordial attitude towards tourists and admirers of her husband.

The newly furnished Legion room in the Community Building looked very attractive and it was shown how easily the furniture could be moved to make room for folding chairs.

Mr. Looker's book, "The White House Gang," which relates the many interesting and amusing episodes of the group of boys who frequented the White House during Roosevelt's Presidency, is on the shelves of the Narberth Community Library.

Was Coldest Day

The mercury has been doing funny things these days. Weatherman Charles Decker's reports show that within the same week, temperatures of 49 and 5 degrees were touched. The latter was reached on Sunday and was the coldest day since January 14, 1929. The week ending last Sunday showed a decided downward trend in temperature.

Vestrymen Elected at All Saints Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting and supper of All Saints Church, Wynnewood, on Monday evening, attended by over fifty people, the following vestrymen were elected: John C. Bell, Jr., of Wynnewood, term expiring 1931; Barry S. Mellor, of Narberth, 1932; W. W. Heindel, of Narberth, 1933; R. Harland Horton, of Wynnewood, 1933; Johns Hopkins, of Wynnewood, 1933, and D. L. Schwartz, of Devon, 1933.

Short addresses were made by the Rev. Canon Ernest C. Earp, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, and by the Rev. Louis W. Pitt, rector of St. Mary's Church, Ardmore.

Reports of the Treasurer, the rector's warden, the ladies' auxiliary, the Young People's Fellowship and the Altar Guild were also made at the meeting.

Library Notes

When the library received an appropriation from the Borough Council last year it had reached one of its goals, the change from amateur to professional status. That involved, too, a quantitative change, forty-two hours of service instead of sixteen each week, and because evenings and Saturdays accounted for most of the additional time, many people can now use the library who had previously been unable to do so. That they have availed themselves of the opportunity, statistics of circulation and registration previously published, make abundantly clear. Since greater use of the library makes more work, not only at the desk, but in all departments, it has been necessary to progressively increase the amount and quality of assistance to the librarian. This added expense created a real problem, which has happily been solved by the new appropriation from Council of $2500 for 1930 in place of $2000 in 1929. For this the library is most grateful.

Miss Mary B. Church, who has served the library so well for the past year, has been reappointed for 1930. The appointment of Miss Clara Follette as full-time assistant, has already been announced.

The solution of the salary question does not end the problems of the library. To buy desirable current books, to rebind old favorites, to furnish magazines, supplies and "sundries" means careful husbanding of all available income. The library should add to its reference collection, it might well increase its magazine list, further duplication may prove desirable. There are still goals ahead.

UNIFORMITY

Jeddo-Highland Coal has always been noted for its purity. But the characteristic which influenced us most in becoming its distributors on the Main Line was its uniformity over a period of seventy-one years.

The Jeddo-Highland mines all lie in one small, restricted area. The coal is always mined from the same veins. The producers keep the preparation of the coal as perfect as is humanly possible and many thousands of dollars are expended each year to keep all the mechanical equipment on a most modern basis. The result is a coal with a definite standard of purity, sizing and cleanliness, constantly kept at the highest point.

A Paid Advertisement in Behalf of Temperance

Several weeks ago there was reprinted in the "Uncle Cy" column of Our Town a Prohibition tract. As the story was told, a business man who dared to believe that licit liquor might return was left flat on his back, the victim of his own argument. It was another instance of shallow philosophy getting the floor and getting away with it.

The other side of the story is printed herewith. It was prepared by a young man who has been taught how to think, but who prefers not to venture the limelight. His reasons for not doing so afford additional grounds for the repudiation of this bad law.

His argument is sound and his conclusions irresistible from any civilized viewpoint. Christians should find it of particular interest. It directs the way to the consideration of the vital fundamentals involved. IT SUGGESTS THE EMPTY TRIUMPHS WHICH WOULD ACCOMPANY A NATION MADE ABSOLUTELY SOBER BY REASON OF LEGAL ENACTMENT. Therefore, mere outline that it is, the undersigned publishes the young man's answer as an Advertisement.

It may induce others to purchase space as a patriotic procedure, to help loosen the chain with which fanaticism, stupidity and chicanery have bound a beloved America.

There is at least some little thing that every well-grounded man and woman can do to help the sorry situation. Behold the miserable plight which confronts us with the tenth anniversary of the thing! Behold the manner in which the cause of True Temperance has been thrown back a full generation as a result of this effort to substitute the cop's club for religion and education in the progress and welfare of humanity!

There is SOMETHING that you can do to help. GO AHEAD AND DO IT.

J. J. CABREY.

"Well," said the business man, with the quiet confidence and tolerance of one who knows and lives by the principle of fraternal charity, "Prohibition is a failure. Men who have an interest in the character of their fellows, and in the weal of their Fatherland, should search for other means to make temperance a living force in the nation."

"Shall you have drink back?" queried the clergyman, "Who is to drink the liquor? Will you?"

"Personally, I am a teetotaler," replied the business man, "but that is aside from the real question at stake. There is involved, rather, the understanding of human nature. I personally would never dream of riding in an airplane, but, for all that, I would not forbid others to use that conveyance, even though those on the ground might receive injury from such as ride through the air. I would not on that account ban the airplane, but would seek sensible laws to bring reasonable safety in its use."

"Will your son drink the liquor that shall be brought back?" asked the clergyman.

"He might. That is his personal business, for he is of age. He is my son, not my slave. My personal rules of conduct are such as my own experience has shown are best for my personal welfare. My son's natural temperateness might restrain him from hurt in its use; whereas my natural inclination to excess has shown me that I personally cannot indulge temperately."

"Would you want drink to come back for the sake of your clerks?"

"I might. There is a question of moderation involved here also. My clerks are not machines, but men; and each of them as much of a man as I hope I am. They have a will to choose to drink or not to drink. Christ, our Lord, used wine, as is borne out in Matt. XI:18, where Christ quotes the criticisms made of Him by the Puritans of His time: 'The Son of Man came eating and drinking,' and they say: 'Behold! a man that is a glutton and a wine-drinker'. He also made wine at the Marriage of Cana. St. Paul advises his helper to drink a little wine for his stomach's sake."

What man apart was there in the teeming record of the centuries, the leaders of the church, State, arts, letters, science, in this or any land, who did not welcome his glass of wine or stronger thing, and what do the archives reveal with respect to their achievements in behalf of humanity as compared to the fruits of the abstemious ones?

"Indeed, Mr. Hoover himself might be persuaded to agree that the stimulant he took before his present high estate helped, not hindered, his climb on the American ladder. (What a boon it might be to him now in his present dilemma!)"

"With these examples, and millions of others to be drawn from the lives of men in lower station, all adorned with the virtue of moderation, I can see no reason why my clerks should not use alcoholic drinks."

"To presume without proof that they shall fail in their work if they drink is faulty logic. The rules of dialectics do not allow us to reason from a possibility to an actual futurity, i. e., to say that because a thing may happen, that it is certainly bound to happen. My business will not necessarily suffer because my clerks take alcoholic drinks. Successful business is the result of good management and shrewd bargaining. My failure to make my business a success will result from a defect in one of these; and if I fail to remove an employee, made inefficient by excessive drinking, it is I who would be at fault."

"Do you want your customers to drink liquor when it returns?" asked the clergyman. "Their bills might not be promptly paid."

"Leaving aside the fact that they have never stopped drinking, being able to pay the present high price of liquor, it is again a question of moderation, and the personal affair of my customers. There is a virtue of temperance and a virtue of honesty. Temperance moderates all our activities. Honesty leads us to give every man what is his, and what we owe him. They are two different virtues. A man may be intemperate in one respect; while in another respect he is thoroughly honest. He may, on the other hand, be at once temperate and dishonest. Evidence of this is in the experience of all of us. We must not confuse ideas by bad thinking through heated argument. Besides, shall we measure all things in terms of money? There is intemperance in an overweening desire for money, as there is in an overweening desire for alcoholic drink. To make money the end of our life is intemperance, for money is only incidental and is a means to the further aim of comfortable, moral, noble living. We must preserve moderation even in earning money. Temperance alone will preserve the balance of our character. And did it ever occur to you that there is a great intemperance in total abstinence?"

"Will you want the engineer of your train to drink alcoholic liquors when they return?" asks the clergyman.

"Again, we have to deal with the question of moderation, and what is moderate depends on time, place and the other circumstances. I would not want the engineer of my train to be, in any degree, under the influence of alcohol while he is driving the train. When he gets home, tired and nerve-strung, the same opinion might not hold. There is a time and place for things and actions. That is why I do not want the minister of my church to usurp with talk of politics the pulpit that is loaned to him to preach 'Jesus Christ and Him crucified'."

"Ah, then," rejoins the clergyman, "you want this liquor for the men whom you meet driving cars on the public highway."

"Again, we have to deal with moderation. We repeat, there is a time and place for things and actions. Future possible conditions may not be urged as valid premises in a logical argument. We must be moderate in our arguments, as we should be in the rest of our life. To make a future possible contingency the basis for a certain conclusion is immoderate. While we discountenance immoderation in drinking, we must also discountenance immoderation in deduction. A dog may bite; many dogs do bite, but I may not for this reason have government agents go about shooting any dog they see on the streets, or, much less, shoot me in my own home when I defend my right to the life of my dog. The same moderation that rules in the statutes that deal with dogs must with moral equality rule in the statutes that deal with drink. Wait until the dog bites, or shows signs of a condition that may lead him to bite. Wait until drink is seen driving cars, or about to drive them. Then, and only then, act in both cases, when the facts warrant actions. The drunken driver is the menace, not the master, of the situation."

"Well, then," asked the clergyman, "who is to drink this liquor that is coming back to America?"

And the level-headed, clear-thinking, moderate and kindly business man replies: "They shall drink whose slow heart-power needs the stimulus that age denies. They shall drink who know when and how to drink. They shall drink who shall not let drink interfere with the duties of their state of life. They shall drink who use moderation in drinking. They shall drink who preserve themselves in the sweet love of God, as Christ drank, and Paul drank, and preserved themselves in an all-embracing love of the Father. Nothing put here by God is harmful if used in moderation. Abuse is always the sinful thing, and there is delirium in denial as well as in drink.

"We in America must remember that mutual forbearance and love are above all other natural things. Kindness is above all; patience is above all; charity is above all. For charity is patient, is kind.

"Charity dealeth not perversely (with its brothers).

"Charity is not puffed up (in conceit at its own virtue).

"Charity is not ambitious (to overcome the good will of its brethren).

"Charity seeketh not her own (intemperate will).

"Charity is not provoked to anger (when its judgments are challenged, when its own wishes are not followed).

"Charity thinketh no evil (by attributing such weakness in others to restrain themselves as it feels in itself).

"Charity rejoiceth not in iniquity (when it selfishly rejoices in a brother's murder to gain its own ends).

"Charity rejoiceth in the truth (no matter if the truth does oppose its own opinion).

"Charity beareth all things (even the weakness, the malice, the error of others).

"Charity hopeth all things (even that God's grace shall recall the sinners of intemperance to a temperate life).

"Charity endureth all things (even though the disgusting habits of others grate upon its own delicacy of feeling).

"Charity never falleth away (for no matter what attacks be made upon it, it still looks with love on the attacker).

"Now there remain Faith, Hope and Charity, and the greatest of these is Charity."

"Thank you," said the clergyman, "your heaven doth work well in me. I see that I have been so overzealous in my work that I have been blinded to the grand aim of all my work. In trying to build up charity in my brothers, I have, it would appear, forgotten to always solicit for myself a fair share of its beautiful and beneficent influence. I have to agree that the experiment cannot be a noble one if the same gracious charity is not accepted as its guiding star, and, after hearing you speak, it must be confessed there is precious little evidence of its presence on the premises. Maybe, in this year of grace, we can take our brother to our heart more than has been the case during the past ten years, and I for one will try to do that very thing."

"And you ought to pray for the Senate whilst you are about it," said the business man.

FORE AND AFT

Difficulties of play choosing; "Even in Egypt"; Wm. Gillette's farewell to the stage; a note on "Porgy."

Says the Main Line Repertory Theatre:

"We shall very soon turn to choosing a repertory for next season. In fact we shall call on a few of our suburban dramaturgists to do the choosing, yet we must give them some basis to work on, and what could be better than a consensus of our patrons' tastes. After all, it is the audience which must be pleased and no matter how well a play is presented, it cannot be called a success unless it receives the enthusiasm of the playgoer. "Play choosing is not the easiest thing in the world. One must ever keep in mind two factors in the adaptability of a play: the staging and the audience. The staging is most important. What will be the cost of production? What difficulties in casting, how many characters and what sort of characters will there be?"

"From the audience standpoint, how will it be received? Is it above the audience or below? Is it too subtle or too outspoken? Is it too long? If it is an emotional play, will it bring tears or horse laughs?"

"The obstacles of play choosing are in one word, limitation. How often we have heard people say: 'I really wish you would consider "So and So," it's an awfully nice play and I'm sure it would make a hit.' Maybe so! But nine times out of ten the play will be deleted for one of the above reasons."

"Our repertory this year was a good start in play choosing. It was chosen among ourselves, unfortunately, and is limited because a few of the 'awfully nice' plays were included for sentiment's sake. Next season we want it perfect. So you, the audience, give us a foundation. Write Cunningham's Barn, Rosemont, and give us some idea of the type of play you would like to see us produce next year."

George Jessel in "Even in Egypt," which began a two-week engagement at the Garrick Theatre on Monday, although based on the famous Bible story of Joseph and Potiphar's wife, with all the authenticity, beauty and charm, nevertheless is packed with modern comedy.

Mr. Jessel, as the boy with the coat of many colors, gives the star role a refreshing uniqueness—bluffing and cleverly talking his way out of serious trouble—resulting in rare riotous laughter in both lines and situations.

William Gillette's return to the stage to say farewell to the playgoers of America, before the footlights, using "Sherlock Holmes" for that purpose, has been hailed with delight by lovers of the theatre everywhere who wish not only to see the great actor again themselves but would impress those who have not seen him with the rare opportunity afforded. When the opening of Mr. Gillette's tour was summoned, Gamaliel Bradford, the distinguished author, wrote to Mr. Gillette from his home in Wellesley Hills, Mass.: "It is indeed delightful news that you are willing to take up the stage once more and give the younger generation an idea of what strong, sober, intelligent American acting ought to be. I suppose there are not now so very many theatregoers who share my vivid recollection of 'Sherlock Holmes,' but there are thousands everywhere who will rejoice in the opportunity to witness such a revival of the best traditions of the American stage."

"Sherlock Holmes" opens at the Broad Street Theatre Monday, January 27, for a two weeks' stay.

One of the charming things about "Porgy," which made a return visit to the Broad Theatre this week, is the enthusiasm and gusto which the players exhibit. It is very evident that the enjoyment of the play is not confined to the spectators alone. In the crap game in the first act, for instance, the actions words and expressions of the colored brethren participating show a naturalness and zest

George Washington slept in the General Wayne Inn when his army was encamped nearby, on its way to Paoli, September 14, 1777. For generations the inn was a noted wayside inn—"to be confounded," as one historian has it, "in no way with the modern saloon." In "ye olden time" the stagecoach ran to Philadelphia in the morning and back in the evening, and at the General Wayne many passengers paused and partook of cooling refreshments.

Almost opposite it, at the corner of Haverford Avenue and Montgomery Pike, stood, until this week, the time-worn blacksmith shop where Lord Cornwallis had his horses shod during the Revolution.

Recently, in accordance with the march of the times, announcement was made that padlock proceedings have been instituted against the inn for violation of the national prohibition act; and the blacksmith shop has been sold to the Standard Oil Company for use as a gasoline filling station.

The fate of the historic tavern, which for some time has had "For Sale" signs posted on it, remains to be seen. As for the equally historic blacksmith shop, that unfortunately, is already a thing of the past and gas tanks will soon succeed the bellows and forge. Plans are under foot by the Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter of the D. A. R. to commemorate the spot with a tablet.

Rush Chapter, D. A. R., Consider Several Matters

Mrs. Kenneth Wilson and Mrs. Thomas Dunlap were hostesses on Monday to the Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter, N. S. D. A. R. At this meeting several subjects of community interest were brought up for discussion and action.

Mrs. B. Earl Achenbach was appointed to represent the Chapter in the question of the removal of the old forge from Haverford and Montgomery Avenues, and marking the site.

Mrs. T. B. duMarais, Librarian, was authorized to present to the Memorial Continental Hall Library, Washington, D. C., four medical volumes written by Dr. Benjamin Rush, which were the gift of Dr. Carl White. By this action, proper preservation of the volumes is assured, and Narberth is thereby represented at Continental Hall.

They are all in order ready for you to call off to your wife, your son or yourself, who holds the dictionary and reads the definitions in a clear tone with proper enunciation.

Of course you won't know the words without a dictionary, unless you're a pedant, than which there is no more pestiferous animal.

So stop discussing the tenth anniversary of prohibition, the amount of gasoline your car burns, the antiques your wife bought that broke the first time they were used, the morbidity of the stock market, and all other banal things; sit down for an hour or two and treat yourself to some new words.

After you've learned them write some goat a letter and use them all, but then forget them, and never try them in conversation, especially not with clients or customers. You'd lose them.

There is nothing so impressive to the genuine low-brow as to have a highbrow treat him to tetrasyllabic words. They rise and fall upon his uncultivated ear as the tones of a great organ. He is entranced, amazed, and goes forth to learn to do likewise. When he succeeds he is intolerable and should be incarcerated.

If anyone can define ten of the words above without consulting any sort of lexicon, I shall be glad to award him a prize of one luncheon.

Hartzler also received a numeral award this fall for his services on the soccer varsity.

Maroon Maintains Fast Clip, Tumbling Episcopal Academy to 58 to 21 Defeat

Lower Merion maintained its unblemished record on the basketball floor last Tuesday afternoon as the fast combination of Coach Bill Anderson swept Episcopal Academy aside for a 58-to-21 victory. Warren Lockwood, with 14 points; John Pennypacker, with 13 points, and Al Bonniwell, with 13 points, led the Maroon scorers.

Lower Merion was without the services of Al Mandes, captain, on account of an injured finger, but this fact did not seem to slow up the high powered combination at all. Bonniwell went to the guard position in place of Al and held his opponent to a couple of field goals during the entire game.

James Turner played a fine game at center, outscoring his man four goals to two. Al D'Amora continued his fine play on defense.

This victory was not so sweet to the Maroon combination as was the hard fought one of last Friday evening at Abington. Anderson's boys had quite a time, as usual, in winning on the visitors' floor. Aside from the fact that the physical equipment of the gymnasium at Abington is entirely inadequate for decent basketball play, the members of Coach Snodgrass' team seemed imbued with the idea that the football season was not over, and they proceeded to make it pretty rough for the visiting basketballers. Those who follow the team were satisfied with the 20-to-13 victory that the Maroon brought back for their ninth win of the season.

The team is out for its eleventh victory tonight, as they meet Chester High in another Suburban League battle at the Junior High Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Lower Merion has another winning basketball combination that very little is said about, but which is playing some first-class ball and maintaining an unbroken string of victories equal to the varsity record. Coach Bill Anderson's second string squad of loop-hunters has won ten straight conflicts to date and are out for their eleventh tonight. On Tuesday afternoon they defeated Episcopal's reserves, 25 to 16, thus keeping pace with Captains Lockwood and Mandes and their teammates.

Bob Blair, Seaver Rose, Roy Williams, Lefty Thomas, Joe Dorsey, "Smitty" Smith, and many others are playing real basketball and keeping up in their development for future varsity competition.

L. M. Junior High Downs Haverford and Upper Darby

Lower Merion Junior High opened its league basketball season last Friday afternoon at Haverford Junior High School and came home with a 31-to-13 victory. Captain Harvey Shillingford was the main cog in Coach Fowler's attack, and he dropped in 19 points during the three quarters that he was in the game. The Orange and Black was never in trouble after the first two minutes of the game, and they widened the breach as the game progressed.

Following up their first league conquest, the team journeyed to Darby Junior High on Monday, the 20th, and annexed their second victory against the boys from the neighboring township. The final score of this conflict was 35 to 16. Shillingford again acted as chief go-getter for the local squad and turned in 22 points for his afternoon's work. He was removed at the end of the third quarter so that some of the eighth graders might gain experience. The whole team looks much improved over their early season form and seem ready to swing into a winning stride.

Highway Committee Gives Annual Report of Work

The annual report of the Highway Committee and the report for December as submitted by Chairman Robert F. Wood, follows:

"During the calendar year 1929 we spent $7407.89 to collect 7732 cubic yards of ashes and rubbish, $3010.32 was spent on street cleaning; $77.22 was spent on sewer maintenance; $1239.02 was spent for labor on street maintenance and $2983.20 was spent for street maintenance materials; $130 was spent for clearing away snow; $2314.08 was spent for labor and $15,911.33 was spent for material in rebuilding Wynnewood Avenue. These are the principal items of expenditure of the Highway and Sewer Department for the past year.

"During the year 1929, thirty-two permits were issued for opening the public highways, yielding a total of $1018.50. In addition, twenty-four permits were issued for depositing material on the public highways, yielding a total of $57.

"During the month of December the work of reducing the crown on the street at the intersection of Essex Dudley and Wynnedale Avenues was completed and revealed a total labor cost of $92.66 and a total materials expense of $187.90, making a total cost of $280.56. The estimate and the appropriation for this work was $250. Delays caused by unexpected cold weather, snow and ice were the principal reasons why we exceeded this estimate by $30.56.

"During December we collected 1075 cubic yards of ashes and rubbish at a total cost of $1016.42. During the same month we spent $26.82 for street maintenance; $56.62 for street cleaning and $14.50 for clearing away snow. The total expenditures of this Department for the month of December were $1299.28."

Charles W. Merkle, Noted Driver, Dies Thursday

Charles W. Merkle of 517 Wynnewood Avenue, Narberth, a noted horseman and driver, died last Thursday morning after an illness of only five days. Mr. Merkle had been in poor health for about two years.

Funeral services were held on Monday from his late residence with interment at Evergreen Cemetery, Camden. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida M. Merkle, a son, Thomas W. Merkle, and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. G. E. Merkle.

Another son, George Eckbert Merkle, died in France in November 1917. He had enlisted in the cavalry immediately after the United States entry into the war and was among the first to go across. His memory is honored by the Miller-Merkle Post Veterans of Foreign Wars of Narberth and Bala-Cynwyd.

Mr. Merkle was born in Merchantville, N. J., on February 6, 1858. A large part of his life was passed in Philadelphia. He was in charge of Tom Cunningham's stables, at Thirty-sixth and Chestnut Streets, from 1907 to 1913. Previous to this he had been in charge of the Holmesburg track and the Point Breeze track.

In 1912 he became the lessee of the Belmont Driving Track at Meeting House Lane, Narberth, which was on the grand circuit and was one of the famous tracks of the country. Both driving and running races were held where a real estate development now is going on. All that remains of the track, grandstand and club house is a ring of posts, the rest having been dismantled after the sale of the track in 1924. At the last race it is said that six thousand people crowded the enclosure. The park was in operation for about fifty years.

During the twelve years when he was lessee of the track, Mr. Merkle and his family lived nearby in the section then called Belmont. In 1924 he moved to 517 Wynnewood Avenue where he lived until his death.

Mr. Merkle was a member of the Narberth Presbyterian Church.

WALTER A. KELLEY

Walter A. Kelley, of 470 Brookhurst Avenue, Narberth, died last Thursday January 16, very suddenly after an illness of two days. He was forty years of age.

Funeral services which took place on Monday from the home were in charge of the Rev. John Van Ness, pastor of the Narberth Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Kelley, who was born in Chester, England, served in the Fifth Cheshire English Regiment during the war. His wife, Mrs. Frances E. Kelley, who survives, served as a British Red Cross worker during the war. Mr. Kelley's father, Thomas Edward Kelley, was decorated with the Imperial Service Order by King Edward.

Mr. Kelley was one of the organizers of the Alexander Rubber Company, serving as its secretary for three years, to the time of his death.

A member of Cassia Lodge, Ardmore, Mr. Kelley had lived in Narberth for the past nine years.

CARL D. GRACE

Carl D. Grace, of 144 North Narberth Avenue, died suddenly at Williamsport on Monday. Formerly supervisor of freight for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia, he was just promoted to supervisor of train service at Williamsport on December 16, 1929.

Mr. Grace was born in Elizabeth, N. J., October 22, 1884. He has been connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad since May 12, 1903, beginning as a clerk in the transportation department, he worked his way up to supervisor of freight service at Broad Street.

The funeral was held from the late residence yesterday at 8 A. M. Mass was celebrated at St. Margaret's Church, Narberth, at 9 A. M. Interment took place in Baltimore, Md. He is survived by his wife, Ruth W. Grace, and two children.

Rotary Speaker Sees Urban Decentralization

"Ten years from now I foresee a large decentralization of population from cities, as people in increasing numbers commute by airplanes from suburban sections," was the prediction made by Charles H. English, of Narberth, director of the Philadelphia Playground Association, Tuesday noon. He was addressing the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club on "The Philadelphia Model Airplane Association."

"It is advisable," he said, "to develop air-mindedness in today's youth, who will be the airplane uses of tomorrow. Radio's remarkable and rapid progress has been made possible by the interest shown ten years ago by boys in the experimental, amateur stages of the industry."

"The scientist works along predetermined lines, whereas youth, nothing to guide him, is inclined to attempt things which are seemingly impossible."

Mr. English urged the formation of a model airplane association here, similar to ones in Philadelphia, to provide amusement, inspiration and instruction to air-minded youngsters. He demonstrated some models, and showed a specimen of balsa wood—lighter than cork—used in their construction.

Dunlop is the chairman and each month has a painting placed on the walls so that every member has the opportunity of seeing it and knowing what contemporary artists of America are doing.

Various reports by committee chairmen were given at the meeting. Mrs. B. Earl Achenbach, chairman of Legislature, presented a motion for a uniform method of displaying the American flag, and the sanction of the law to make the Star-Spangled Banner the national anthem. Both motions were passed.

Mrs. W. N. Mills, chairman of Home Economics, reported that the class for the study of home decoration would begin on February 13.

Mrs. L. Parker Miller requested the members of the club to support the sub-Junior who will give a movie benefit in the near future.

Borough to Hire Full-Time Attendant

This is the situation which was informally discussed and analyzed at the last meeting of Council at which it was also brought out that the appointment of a sergeant of police further increased the necessity of having the Borough telephone covered by him or by another competent person who could relieve him for the more important outside work. It was not the intention of the Burgess and Council that the new sergeant of police should become an "inside man."

The Highway Committee was therefore authorized to investigate and make a definite report and recommendation at the next meeting of Council in reference to the possibility of hiring a permanent office attendant for the Borough. It seems to be the consensus of official opinion that this is a position which can best be filled by a woman, and the Highway Committee, therefore, is now ready to receive written applications from women who can meet the following specifications:

A native or long-time resident of Narberth; between twenty-five and thirty-five years of age; either married or single but with a sound business training which has been practically uninterrupted since she finished school; proficient in both stenography and typing and in planning and keeping accurately and neatly, simple book-keeping and recording; complete high school education is desirable but not essential if less education has been supplemented by a naturally informed and alert mind.

These are the fundamental requirements which are desired, but personality, natural courtesy and tact will be more important than any of them in the successful conduct of the work. A young woman who is naturally and sincerely interested in public affairs in the terms of courteous service to all the people, who can listen sympathetically and helpfully to Mrs. A's troubles with her over-flowing garbage pail; to old Mr. B, whose morning siesta on the front porch has been disturbed by the roller skating and antics of the neighboring children on the public walk out in front, and who can patiently and quickly extract from the excited householder the exact address to which he desires the police or the firemen to be sent when, if left to himself, he would say, "My house is afire" or "My wife is poisoned" and hang up. This new Borough employee must be able to develop into a reliable and accurate source of all kinds of information and above all, she must not retail to her friends and relatives the many interesting, tragic or amusing bits of personal knowledge which will daily drift into her ears.

The hours of work, as now tentatively suggested, will be from 8 to 12 A. M. and from 1 to 5 P. M. daily except Saturdays, when the hours will be from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M. The salary at the start will be largely determined by the prevailing salaries paid by business houses in the Philadelphia area for similar work.

Applications should be addressed in writing to the chairman of the Highway Committee, Councilman Robert F. Wood, of 237 Forrest Avenue, and Wood, of 237 Forest Avenue, and the evening of Saturday, February 1. The written application should indicate in what degree the applicant can meet the requirements indicated in this announcement and the salary desired. No attempt should be made to seek personal interviews with Mr. Wood or any other members of Council, for it will be the plan of the committee to give every applicant an opportunity for a personal interview with the entire committee.

New Drama Coming to Egyptian; 'Marianne' Here

"Marianne," the talkie scheduled this Friday and Saturday at the Egyptian, Cynwyd, is said to be Marion Davies' best film. Supporting her are Lawrence Gray, Cliff Edwards ("Ukelele Ike"), and the new screen comedian, Benny Rubin; also a large singing male chorus.

A plot of exceptional appeal, and acting of unusual merit combine in making "The Lady Lies" a highly praised cinema. Walter Huston of "Gentlemen of the Press" and "Virginian" fame, appears in the talkie, which is scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday at the Egyptian. Wednesday and Thursday, Constance Talmadge will be seen to good advantage in "Venus." "The 13th Chair," with Conrad Nagel and Leila Hyams, will round out the week.

Coming attractions for The Egyptian include, according to Manager Joseph Conway, "Rio Rita," "Evangeline," "Untamed," "Navy Blues," "The Mighty," "The Virginian," "Hollywood Revue" and "Welcome Danger."
